About Us

The team at Kenick is DRIVEN to create extremely safe and high performing products that our utility partners can deploy with confidence. Before a new product is introduced to our utility clients, it must first pass a comprehensive design review and rigorous surge testing to verify its ability to handle small, medium and extreme surge conditions. We maintain our own research/surge testing lab facility in Saint Petersburg, Florida and use our 100,000-Amp calibrated surge generator to develop a very robust product line for use by our utility clients.

Testimonials

"When the products we install need to be perfect there are only so many companies to go with. I've never been let down with their efforts."

-Field Coordinator

"I have it on my home, I know it works which is why I have no problem recommending it to folks who call in."

-Customer Service Rep

"[Our] working relationship with Kenick is, and always has been, mutually rewarding and beneficial. We've tried other companies and have found NO ONE'S surge protection products compatible with what we've received from Kenick when comparing product and price. Kenick was instrumental in helping [us] setup a very lucrative and yet value added service for our members."

-Manager of Marketing & Communications

"Until this past year, our cooperative had three different surge product lines deployed across our system. Due to the product quality, customer support and customer service we have received through Kenick, our cooperative opted to do a change-out of all surge units to the Kenick product line only. Since doing so, customer complaints and claims filed have practically diminished."

-Manager of Marketing and Communications
